

Carla Otero

Movement // Lifestyle // Dance

February 12, 2018

CarlaOteroDance offers Afro-Caribbean Dance Workshop

Winthrop, MA - On February 11, 2018, CarlaOteroDance offered an Afro-Caribbean Dance Workshop at the E.B. Newton School and Cultural Center in Winthrop, MA. The event was a huge success where everyone in attendance left having learned more about the exciting style of dance.

The workshop started with a brief introduction of the instructors, Carla Otero and Etienne Hernandez, followed by the history of “Bomba”, a style of dance originating in Puerto Rico, which inspired the movement taught during the class. Sitting in a circle, everyone shared their name and what they hoped to get out of the afternoon’s activities. Attendees came from all walks in life, people who had trained in belly dancing to ballet and some who had never danced before.

After getting to know one another, the event started with a warm-up, lead by Etienne. There was a gentleman in attendance who was blind and Carla assisted him with the movement through light touch and descriptive communication. Everyone followed along expertly, starting from the top and working their way down to their feet. About twenty-minutes of breathy movement and seeing how everyone interpreted the warm-up exercises, the guests started to interact with one another. People were paired up to move across the floor practicing steps that would come into to play during the choreography portion of the workshop. Some moves were combining step touches with jumps and claps along to the beat of the music, three point turns and deep pliés in second position. Lastly, the students learned how to leap onto one leg and then bring it back into a carefree “pas de chat”, many stating it felt liberating to jump across the floor, reminding them of child’s play.

The positive energy kept increasing throughout the afternoon and everyone continued to interact with the movement. The music picked up with the beating of multiple drums and seeing that the basic steps were learned, Carla and Etienne demonstrated the choreography the class would learn next. After a quick water break, attendees started learning the choreography putting together many of the warm-up exercises and across the floor combos to make up a short dance. Arm movements were to the beat of the drums, hips swung side to side and smiles were spread across everyone’s faces in the warm dance room. After breaking down the steps for everyone, Carla divided the group into two so that each individual had enough space to dance as expressively as they desired. This method also gave a chance for the instructors to see the movement and for guests to see how others were moving to the music and interpreting the dance within in their unique way. Finally, the teaching of the choreography was complete and both groups enjoyed showing off their talents back and forth several times.

To end the dance portion of the workshop, Carla lead the cool down where once again everyone followed along gracefully through slow elongated moves and articulation of the spine to finish with a full body stretch. Everyone took a seat in a circle and Carla asked everyone to share any takeaways they may have had from the workshop. Some of the most resounding comments were the positive energy that ensued throughout the afternoon and how great it was to try something new, move again and leave the stress and worries of the week behind. Many expressed how they were inspired to dance more and even asked the instructors where they could practice the moves they had learned that day during a night out.

An anonymous questionnaire was handed to each attendee; here is some of the feedback:

“Great instructors! Inspiring!”

“Loved the group experience.”

“Very supportive instructors, easy to follow, positive energy, welcoming atmosphere.”

“I would love to attend another workshop taught by Carla and her brother.”

“Very encouraging words from teachers to all students.”

“It was really nice to learn a new dance and all involved couldn’t have been more patient and encouraging.”

“Very entertaining and very uplifting.”

Inspired by the workshop Carla Otero expressed she was encouraged to offer more events like these that are open to the community free of charge to keep spreading the joy of dance.

*This program was supported in part by a grant from the Winthrop Cultural Council, a local agency which is supported by the Mass Cultural Council, a state agency.

About CarlaOteroDance:

At Carla Otero Dance individuals discover their inner dancer through expressive movement in classes catered to their needs and learning style. Located in the Boston Metro Area, services include: private, semi-private and group lessons, master classes or workshops, preparation and recording for dance audition videos and choreography for special events. Find out more at carlaotero.com.

For more information visit carlaotero.com

Follow us on Facebook and Instagram @carlaoterodance